

Aurora wakes in golden light

George B. Allen
(1822-1897)

George Benjamin Allen (1822-1897) was born in London and trained early as chorister at St. Martin-in-the-Fields and Westminster Abbey. He established the Abbe Glee Club. He went to Ireland as Vicar-Choral at Armagh Cathedral and conducted the Classical Harmonic Society in Belfast. He originated the scheme for building the Ulster Hall in Belfast. He graduated from Oxford and became organist at All Saints', Kensington, London. He relocated to Melbourne, Australia, as organist at Toorak, Melbourne, and became conductor of Lyster's Opera Company. He later organized an opera company of his own which he traveled through Australia, New Zealand and India. For a time, he returned to England and established a comedy opera company, which produced several operas by Sir Arthur Sullivan. He died in Brisbane, Queensland, Australia. He was active as a composer and wrote 5 operas, 3 cantatas, 2 Te Deums, anthems, part-songs and about 300 songs.

Aurora wakes in golden light,
The skylark wings his upward flight
O'er meadows green and pearly;
The blackbird whistles on the bough,
The merry thrush is piping now,
All in the morning early.

Her blithesome tune the milkmaid sings
As home the dripping pail she brings
Where meadow dews are pearly;
A sound of joy is on the breeze,
And birds make vocal all the trees,
All in the morning early.

Anon.
